

Many faith-promoting meetings were held in this meeting place for the Innsbruck members although it was built under a railroad right-of-way over which trains thundered at various times of day.

New Innsbruck Branch Chapel, Membership Rise Together

INNSBRUCK, AUSTRIA—It will not be long until the members of the Church in the Innsbruck Branch will be attending dedication services for their new chapel.

The branch has a membership of 385 and is steadily growing under the proselyting efforts of missionaries and local members.

Total cost of the building will be approximately $175,000. Local members and six Church Builders, under the supervision of Franz Wallner, have furnished all of the labor.

When Pres. Ezra Taft Benson of the European Mission and a member of the Council of the Twelve dedicates the building, it will take the membership from a unique meeting house.

This is probably the only chapel to be run over by a train without damage. The railroad bed runs over the roofs of the buildings in that area.

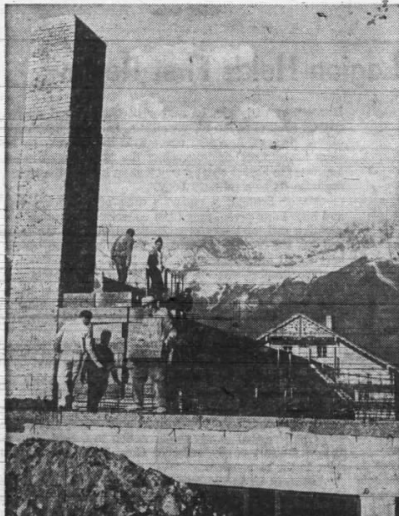

Innsbruck members are proud of their new chapel which will have 8,400 square feet divided between their 220-seat chapel, cultural hall and classrooms.

Supervisor Wallner tells an interesting story of his conversion. He was pilot in World War II and was captured and sent, as a prisoner of war, to Idaho Falls, Idaho, where he was treated kindly by Mormons who brought German literature to him and other prisoners. They eventually returned to Germany. When Mormon missionaries came to his door they were invited in and the Wallners studied the Gospel, were converted and baptized.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallner immigrated to the United States. They had been there only three months when he was called to be a building supervisor in Europe.

Church Builders have been working on the Innsbruck Chapel for a year and a half.

Church Builders make rapid progress in building the new chapel in Innsbruck, Austria, with aid of members who furnish labor.

President Brown Speaks

have your lives ahead of you. What are you going to do with them? Now is an opportune time to make resolutions as to what we will make of our lives.

"Our world is enlarging as we grow older and in each phase of that growth we find difficult problems and satisfactions. As we proceed in that endeavor we are fulfilling the things which God intended us to perform."

President Brown concurred with Bishops Earl Jeppson and A. Glen Christensen of the 10th and 9th wards, respectively, who also spoke that during such a building program tithing increases as do other contributions.

The large crowd attending the program laughed when President Brown, good-naturedly posed the question:

"I'm wondering if there are some who are wondering if there's a place to put their spare money now that you've come to the end of your building program for a moment?"

Other speakers on the program were Clyde Rushion, a church building supervisor on the project, and President Eugene W. Pearson, of the Kearns North Stake.

The invocation was offered by Hugh Sharp and the benediction by Edgar Golgrove, other building supervisors.

Music was furnished by the combined ward choirs who sang "This Chapel We Dedicate to Thee," the "Hosannah Anthem" and "The Spirit of God Like a Fire Is Burning," directed by Doris Banks and Imogene Thurn. Accompanists were Joy Layne Peterson and Herman Andreasson.

MUSIC IN THE CHURCH

Roy Darley Makes Debut On Weekly Choir Broadcast

By HAROLD LUNDSTROM
Deseret News Music Editor

This week's issue of the Church News announces (page 5) "Roy M. Darley will play as organ solos: 'Chaconne' by Couperin and 'Take Time to Be Holy' by Stebbins."

But this item is far from being a perfunctory one.

It is the first time that Elder Darley has played on the broadcast. Elder Darley served as "assistant Tabernacle organist" from his appointment in 1947 until April General Conference 1964 when he was sustained as "Tabernacle organist" with Dr. Schreiner and Dr. Asper.

As a member of the Young Men's MIA General Board since 1947, he has been a member of its music committee and served five years as its chairman.

From June, 1961, through June, 1962, he served on a special assignment from the First Presidency as resident organist at the new Hyde Park Chapel in London, England, following the opening series given by Dr. Schreiner. While in London, he was awarded his "ARCM" (Associate of the Royal College of Music).

Prior to his serving as a chaplain during World War II, Elder Darley was organist and director of the bureau of information at the Washington Ward chapel on Embassy Row in Washington, D.C.

Elder Darley has been heard from coast to coast in recitals and concerts, only last Saturday evening playing a recital in the Van Nuys State Center in southern California.
